

FormPipe Platina Case Management is the most modern case management system on the market and makes it possible to manage all kinds of cases. From the very start, it features finished functionality for journalisation, which supports all legal requirements and is also available for other case types.

FormPipe Platina Case Management is used to visualise, automate, manage and create new cases in a simple manner. The different cases can easily be linked and published as information to different groups and users.

Integration with other systems to collect and deliver information, or to activate deeds in real time – for example, display case or customer cards via integration with a telephone switchboard – is relatively simple to set up in FormPipe Platina thanks to the program's standardised integration components.

Manual processes make it simple for your staff to organise and manage their cases, information and documents. A well-functioning case management system can directly automate and improve the efficiency of everyday tasks. The Case Management module simplifies, structures and automates the administrative work associated with case management and ensures that all critical process steps are carried out in accordance with established work-flows and routines.

Extensive options

Cases can take many forms: journalised cases, deviation cases, CAPA and support cases, and so on. A general case management system covers all the case types that exist within an organisation. The case management system must also be able to deal with documents and other types of electronic information, such as e-mail and images, that is integrated with the cases. The work process functions ensure that cases and documents are automatically directed to the right person within the organisation – at the right time.

When the company has decided which types of cases it wishes to manage in FormPipe Platina, it does not take long to implement these in the system using the intuitive administration tool supplied. FormPipe Platina Case Management allows users to generate statistics and prepare reports with a high level of detail. In addition, reports can be based on previously performed searches and can contain information supplied from the system's own database combined with data from other sources.

About FormPipe Software AB

FormPipe Software's programs help organisations to gather, manage and distribute information, and to place it in the correct context.

Reduced costs, minimised risk exposure and structured information are all benefits that stem from using FormPipe Software's products.

Contact us
Tel. +46 8 555 290 60
E-mail: info@formpipe.se